

CNN gives us the weather. The Weather Channel gives us the weather. We pay for these. We can even check for traffic delays on the web -and we pay for internet access. XM is equivalent to cable on the radio. Any resource that helps the public should be allowed to continue. Why should we be forced to listen to commercial after commercial if we don't want to. The NAB has to work to make its outlets more desirable to the listener - plain and simple. Please let XM thrive. If we don't like it-we'll simply stop paying for it. thanks,
Kenn